FOR THE SATURDAY EVENING POST.

TO THE MOON.

I.

Sweet moon! I view thee beaming,—
Thy mildly orient light,
Profusely now is streaming,
To cheer the lonely night:
The fields of ether o'er thee
Are glowing in thy blaze,
The smiling earth before thee
Is silvered in thy rays.

II.

Sweet moon! I view thee sailing
Thro' heaven's resplendant way,
Thy downward light availing,
To make a lesser day:
But not thy radiance only
My devious step attends,
My heart that beats so lonely
A joy thy radiance lends.

III.

Sweet moon! the holy hour
Might dullest souls inspire,
Raise inspiration's power
To tune the heavenly lyre,
Give to the poet's dream
The splendour of thy light,
And all his glowing theme,
Be, as thy beauties, bright.

IV.

Sweet moon! I oft adore thee—
The lightness of my heart
Like clouds that come before thee
Must like those clouds depart.
But joy I'll often borrow
Where'er thy ray I see,
And hope shall light to-morrow
With light that glows like thee! D.

PARODY ON CATO'S SOLILOQUY.

[SELECTED.]

It must be so—my friend thou reason'st well!
Else whence this pleasing hope, this fond desire—
This longing for the happy wedding day!
Or whence this secret pining, and the fear
Of dying an old maid?—Why turn my ear
As if asham'd, while pleas'd, to hear of marriage!
'Tis but timidity that stirs within me:
For Heaven itself declares we out to marry,
And promises much happiness shall follow.
Much happiness! those pleasing anxious thoughts!
Thro' what variety of untrod winding,
Thro' what rough scenes would I not pass to find thee?
The field of matrimony lies before me,
And settled sunshine seems to rest upon it.
There will I hold? If I have e'er a lover,
(And that I have my neighbours all can witness,
Throughout the place) he must delight in wedlock:
And that which he esteems must make me happy.
But where, or how—This town delights in scandal;
I'm weary of contriving, thus 'tis ended:
Thus am I twice secure—my keys—a marriage—
Two methods of concealment are in view:
These will secure me from the gaping crowd;
Or that will quickly waft us to the country.
The wife, secure in her fond husband, smiles
At Old Maids—Jeers and laughs at all their envy,
For they will fade away and loose their charms:
Grow garish with long age, and never get them husbands;
But we shall live, to crown each others wishes,
Unchang'd amidst the various scenes of life,
The smiles of fortune, or her darkest frowns.

TO THE NEW MOON.

Sweet empress of the silent night,
I view thy crescent gleaming far,
And see thee roll thy chariot bright,
Far westward toward the evening star;
O! if the poet's ardent pray'r
One moment might prolong thy stay,
I'd bid thy crescent linger there,
Or sparkle in the milky way;
So like an angel's is thy smile,
As heavenly sweet, yet transient too,
The voice of care is hush'd awhile
And hope rekindles at the view;
My heart is changing as thy horn—
Now bright with joy, now sunk in gloom,
As frowning grief imparts the thorn
Or pleasure bids her roses bloom:
Once happier prospects cheer'd my day!
Like thee increasing still more fair,
Now like thy waning orb's decay,
I sink the victim of despair. RYNO.

TO A MOUSE,

Which took lodgings with the author in a public house.

Fly not, poor tremb'er, from my bed!
Beside me safely rest;
For here no murderous snare is spread—
No foe may here molest.
Deem not thy fate as mine severe;
Alas! thou dost not know
The thorns that fill the desert drear—
The breast of man below.
Oh, could'st thou see the pangs that rend
The fibres of the heart!
The kinsman's hate—the ingrate friend—
The depth of human art,—
Thou'd'st bless the Power thy form that framed,
Although of CATS the prey;
For man's unkindness oft hath shamed
The foes, THY friends that slay.
Thy foes are known; man does not know,
Though nurtured on his breast,
The serpent that shall prove his foe—
That to his heart is prest.
Poor trembler! fly not from my bed;
Here's room enough for thee:
My pillow but supports ONE head—
From that 'twill soon be free.
Then range or rest, as suits thy mood—
Nay, pr'ythee, do not start;
I know that thou would'st filch my food,
But never GNAW my HEART!

TO J.

Pray to the muse, the muse will thee inspire,
And bless thee with its happiest, noblest fire:
Resolve to write—thy skillful hand and heart
Ens store of harmony's delightful art:
Each tuneful note thy hand can well supply,
Raise but the moral strain—thy notes shall never die!

FOR THE SATURDAY EVENING POST.

"If any man sue thee at the law, and take away thy coat, let him have thy cloak also." This excellent advice of our Saviour to unfortunate victims of the Lex-talionis, while it encourages a pacific and forbearing disposition towards their prosecutors, will always be found perhaps no less politic than just—for besides the peaceable and christian feeling it inculcates, it is often of great advantage in a pecuniary point of view; the expences, delays and uncertainties attending a legal process, are often such that to part with a coat and cloak in the first instance, is the only safe mode to preserve the rest of the garments, and prevent being stript to the skin.—I have somewhere read an anecdote of an emblematical painting being hung up to ornament a hall of justice—It represented the litigious nature of the Law; on one hand was seen a man all in tatters and rags, wringing his hands, with a label importing that he had lost his suit—opposite to this was a man that had not a rag left, but was stark naked, jumping, capering and triumphing that he had gained his cause. This painting was soon taken down, in consequence of the clamour it made among the lawyers. Going to law, at best, is a very unprofitable and perplexing business, and is almost uniformly commenced from the impulse of an over hasty and perverse spirit; and the delays, disappointments and costs, added to the loss of time, care and anxiety, are the punishments that frequently follow.—Many a man by hazarding the uncertain litigation of the law, has in the disastrous issue been brought to the threshhold of ruin, when a more deliberate course would have ensured his ease and safety. By putting the business out of his own hands into the hands of others, whose interest it is to protract the suit, he commences a work, over which he loses the controul, and his lawyers often prescribe to him as a physicion does in a dangerous disease—so that it would be wisdom to pause and reflect before entering into the doubtful contest, and even when tangled in the toils, "draw thy hand as softly as possible out of the Lion's mouth."

SKETCHES—No. V.

BEAUTY.

"Beauty is bought by judgment of the eye."
SHAKS.

In some recent memoirs of Anacreon, the following beautiful remarks occur, "The rays of beauty may dazzle our eyes for a moment like a solar beam, but if the mind be not affected, they fade as the sun declines beneath the western cloud, and when this fascination that once so sweetly captivated our senses has lost its attractions, we shall find but a faint impression of what was once lovely remaining."

It was indubitably intended by the divine author, that a taste for the beauties of creation, both animate and inanimate, should be inherent in every breast. The eye, as the poet expresses it, purchases the external charms of an object, and through this medium the impression is made on the heart. The mind delights in the excursive ranges of the eye over a verdant mead,—a sylvan bower, and on the silvery tints of Luna, as they play upon the bosom of a limpid stream So are the affections enlisted in favour of personal charms. Often—very often, as if by a magic opiate, the reason is lulled into a dormant subjection, and beauty has supreme control over the deluded senses, while the spell that subdues them draws a veil over the mental blemishes which so usually exist in the possessor of the gift.

If our predilection for beauty is natural, we should not let this excuse the excess, which our admiration leads us to, nor extenuate the moral guilt we incur by bestowing an unlimited attention to its cultivation. It has its disadvantages as well as its benefits; and in most instances perhaps the former predominate. The blandishments of flattery are generally lavished upon the possessor;—the mind becomes weakened by their effects, and a consequent neglect of intellectual qualities ensues.

If it is not commendable in a female to be particularly attentive to outward appearances, it is certainly much less so in a male. Beauty is an enviable ornament to the former, when the rules of prudence are not neglected for those of ostentatious display.—But for the latter, nothing is more improper than to bestow much attention upon that which is almost incompatible with masculine dignity. In his character

"Beauty is excelled by manly grace
And wisdom ——————"

The poets are even profuse in their encomiums on beauty; and perhaps its fascinations cannot be described so well as in the flowing language of the muse. Milton thus beautifully expresses the address which EVE imagines she hears from ADAM,

——"Heaven wakes with all his eyes,
Whom to behold but thee, nature's desire?
For whose sight all things joy with ravishment,
Attracted by thy BEAUTY, still to gaze."

But however captivating beauty may appear, its bloom is of short duration. It is like the vernal floweret which flourishes only in the sunshine of spring. The rays of mental worth never diminish but with the languishment of life. The breast of a homely exterior may possess innate qualities which effectually eradicate the prejudices of the most fastidious admirer of outward symmetry. They are like the blossoms of virtue under a homely garb, but external beauty without mental charms, is deformity clothed in a tawdry mantle.

THE ITINERANT—No. III.

"From grave to gay, from lively to severe."

PART OF A WELSH SERMON.—A bride should have nine qualifications all beginning with the letter P, viz. Piety, Person and Parts; Patience, Prudence and Providence; Priviledge, Parentage and Portion; but that which should be first of all and most of all in consideration, which is Piety, is now a days thought of, last of all, least of all, and by many not at all; and that which should be least of all, and last of all in consideration, which is Portion, is now become first of all, most of all, and with many all in all.

LONG TALKERS.—It is neither grateful nor discreet to dwell too long upon a subject; the brain being like a field, though never so rich, if you harrow over it, you will be sure to turn up barren ground at last.

FASHIONABLE BONNETS.—Mrs. W. (says a writer in an Eastern paper) complains bitterly to Mrs. S. of the late modern fashion of making bonnets. She concludes thus—"For my part I cannot say that I feel perfectly easy about the matter, for I have not had a single kiss since I first wore the bonnet; nor do I much wonder, for it is impossible for any creature, except it be a horse, or some other long snouted animal, to perform the act."

SELECT SENTENCES.—"The business of life," says Dr. Johnson, "is to go forward—he who sees evil in prospect meets it in his way, but he who catches it by retrospection turns back to find it. That which is feared may be sometimes avoided, but that which is regretted to day, may be regretted to-morrow.

BEAUTY, after five-and-thirty, is like a forfeited peerage, the title of which is given by the courtesy of the well-bred, to those who have no legal claim to it

ELASTICITY OF MIND.—Mademoiselle du The, having lost a favourite suitor, and the event becoming public, a gentleman who paid her a visit, found her playing on a harp. Quite surprised he said to her, "I expected to have found you in a state of despondency." "Ah," said she in a pathetic tone, "You should have seen me yesterday."

THE TYTHE.—A witty divine having received an invitation to dinner, written on the ten of hearts, by a young lady of great beauty, merit and fortune, returned the following—

Your compliments lady, I pray you forbear,
For old English service is much more sincere;
You've sent me ten hearts, but the tythe's only mine,
So give me one heart, and take back t'other nine.

NEW ENGLAND BLUE LAWS.

Of these celebrated laws, the following extracts were made from the original document, by a gentleman who travelled through the United States, in 1807.

"No food or lodging shall be afforded to a Quaker, Adamite, or other heretic."

"If any person turns Quaker, he shall be banished, and not suffered to return, but upon pain of death."

"No one shall run on the sabbath day, or walk in his garden or elsewhere, except reverently to and from meeting."

"No one shall travel, cook victuals, make beds, sweep house, cut hair, or shave, on the sabbath day."

"No woman shall suckle her child on the sabbath or fasting day."

"The sabbath shall begin at sunset on Saturday."

"A drunkard shall have a master appointed by the select-men, who are to debar him the liberty of buying and selling."

"Whoever publishes a lie, to the prejudice of his neighbour, shall sit in the stocks, or be whipped fifteen stripes."

"Whoever wears clothes trimmed with gold, silver or bone lace, above two shillings by the yard, shall be presented by the grand jurors, and the select-men shall tax the offender at 300*l.* estate."

"A debtor in prison, swearing he has no estate, shall be let out, and sold, to make satisfaction."

"No one shall read common-prayer, keep Christmas, or saint days, make minced-pies, dance, play cards, or play on any instrument of music, except the drum, trumpet and jews-harp"

"No man shall court a maid in person, or by letter, without first obtaining consent of her parents; 5*l.* for the first offence: 10*l.* for the second, and for the third imprisonment during the pleasure of the court."

"Married persons must live together, or be imprisoned"

"Every male shall have his hair cut round according to a cap."

A NEW VOCABULARY.

Overseers of the poor. Men are very apt to overlook many abuses they ought to look into.

Coroner, Coroner's inquest. These words plainly express their derivation from the corbin crows, which go from place to place to sit upon dead bodies Every reader knows that it is a very ancient custom for the officer now termed coroner, when any person is found dead, to go with a jury of twelve men, to sit upon the body; and this group is termed Coroner's inquest, which means simply Corioners in quest of a body.

Medical At the beginning of last century, it was customary for all physicians, who were in want of employment, to frequent Button's Coffee house, whither persons dangerously ill used to send for advice. On the arrival of a messenger on this errand, all the sons of Æsculapius would rise in the greatest hurry to enquire which of them were wanted, at the same time crying, "Me d'ye call?" From this circumstance they were first dubbed Medical men.

Weapons Warlike instruments, so called, because their office is to make many weep on.

Scymetar. A kind of broad sword used by the Turks, from See meat here! an exclamation common among the barbarians, while exercising this instrument of butchery.

Scurify. Among Surgeons, to lance a wound, to make incisions, because patients are so frequently scared at those sharp operations.

Good humour and mental charms are as much superior to personal beauty, as mind is to matter.

The Hogshead of Odd Things—No. 1.

'Homo sum, et humani a me nil alienum puto.'

Messrs Editors,

Though the quantity of your original matter, and the number of your writers are already considerable, yet I take the liberty of offering for your consideration, some observations which a little leisure gives me an opportunity of communicating, and for which, if they meet your approbation, I claim a place among your other correspondents. You must be aware that many circumstances come within our observation which may be amusing to others; and hours of leisure and retirement cannot perhaps be more profitably employed, than in reflecting upon such as particularly claim our attention.—Yet there is a certain class of men, and some too who perhaps stand midway in the rank of science, that take a particular pleasure in ridiculing almost every thing they find in a newspaper beyond the ordinary news of the day, or a general statement of local and political events—who affect to believe our productions the "futile efforts of low-born genius," or the puerile effusions of some would-be wise man; they call us petty scribblers—But when we consider the effect which our periodical publications have upon the community, and the number whose reading extends but little beyond their newspapers, it is certainly proper that we should bring every thing within their observation which may be advantageous or amusing. Dr. Johnson somewhere says, that "no man can perform so little as not to have reason to congratulate himself on his merits, when he beholds the multitudes that live in total idleness, and have never yet attempted to be useful." "The first man," says he, "that ranged the woods in search of medical springs, or climbed the mountains for salutary plants, has undoubtedly merited the gratitude of posterity, how much soever his frequent miscarriages might excite the scorn of his contemporaries. If whatever appears little be universally despised, nothing great can ever be attained, for all that is great was once little and rose to its present bulk by gradual accessions and accumulated labours.

Readers may not improperly be divided into two classes—The first (which we hope is the most numerous) are those who willingly take up what is placed before them, with an intention of comprehending the views of its writer and receiving whatever instruction it may afford. Unprejudiced by any irrelative circumstances, they are seldom disappointed, and are often gratified when they least expect it. The other class are those who, incapable or unwilling to derive any satisfaction themselves, complain more through choice, or a perverseness of inclination, and have seldom any serious opinion about the matter. They look with scorn upon every thing they consider inferior to their own acquirements, and with affected contempt upon whatever they are forced to believe is above them. But when they are closely scrutinized we will find them to be, not a very e viable set of mortals, but generally men of weaker minds and more narrow discernment than they are willing to own: fond of being complimented for acquirements they never possess, and only reconciled by acquiescence and submission.

It is not my intention to occupy your time long upon this subject, but what I have here said may serve as a hint to such as have been di-posed to act in the manner to which I allude. And, though, perhaps such might be brought over to favour by obsequiousness on our part, yet their friendship is too worthless and too dangerous to repay the sacrifice necessary to obtain it. HORATIUS.

AMERICAN POETRY.

Messrs. Editors,

The remarks under this head contained in your paper of the 27th ult. are not intended to discourage the genuine votary of the muse. Although our journals abound with materials destitute alike of stamina and originality, there occasionally glimmers through the gloom, a gem of rare beauty, rendered still more attractive by the surrounding obscurity. I have noticed with pleasure that your miscellany can occasionally boast of such. No one can be more ready to allow cordial approbation where it is due than myself, and it is gratifying to notice in this way the effusions of your correspondent "Pasquin," whose pieces by their neatness of versification and correctness of sentiment, b speak him a writer of good powers. I have been occasionally pleased with the productions of "D." and assure him that while he favors the public with such compositions as "The Parting," he will be read with approbation. K.

FROM THE VILLAGE RECORD.

Dialogue between a Subscriber and Printer.

Sub. But stop, Mr. Printer, and while you are so busily engaged in telling us every thing that is going on abroad, is there nothing that concerns yourself, at home, which you wish to speak of?

P. Upon my word, I don't know what, in particular you allude to.

Sub. Is not this about the close of the year; and does not a new volume begin soon?

P. O, yes, the next week we cry 'one of a new,' and begin our sixth year. But what of that?

Sub. Do you not intend before Court to give your readers notice of it, just to jog their memories, that those who are indebted may come in and pay you?

P. I had thought not; and for this reason—it would look like a newspaper dun, which I very much dislike.

Sub. But would it not be desirable to have all your subscribers come or send in, and pay you up the balances due; do you owe nothing to your papermaker, or have you paid for your house yet?

P. Bless your heart! what questions—yes, I am indebted to my paper maker something, and owe a pretty large sum for my house; and as to my subscribers coming or sending in and settling up the balances due, though trifling in themselves, nothing could be more acceptable; but without a formal notice most of them will recollect it—and so generous have I always found them, that those who can muster up a dollar or two, I have no doubt will either bring the sum themselves or send it by some neighbor.

Sub. I am glad to see you have so much confidence, and hope it may be realized: for I think you take pains enough for it

P. Thank you for the compliment; I am never ungrateful for favours; and, sensible of the kindness bestowed upon me, shall do the utmost in my power to render the Record worthy of its extensive and increasing patronage.

SCRAPS FROM WALPOLE.

Miss Aiken, in her life of James I. remarks, to the discredit of that monarch, that he permitted his preceptor, George Buchanan, the most accomplished Latin poet and scholar of his age, to die in penury, and receive interment at the cost of the city of Edinburg. The King did not like the republican sentiments of Buchanan, who on his death bed was intreated by his friends to soften some passages of his history, for fear of incensing the King. 'Is not what I have said true?' asked he. They assented. 'Then,' said he, 'I will stand his feud and that of all his kin; I am going shortly where very few Kings are admitted."

Mr. Pennant, the British tourist, in his private life had some peculiarities, and even eccentricities. Among the latter may be classed his singular antipathy to a wig—which, however, he could suppress till reason yielded a little to wine. But when this was the case, off went the wig next to him, and into the fire!

Dining once at Chester, with an officer who wore a wig, Mr. Pennant became half seas over, and another friend that was in company carefully placed himself between Pennant and the wig, to prevent mischief. After much patience and many a wistful look, Pennant started up, seized the wig, and threw it into the fire. It was in flames in a moment, and so was the officer, who ran to his sword. Down stairs runs Pennant, and the officer after him, through all the streets of Chester. But Pennant escaped, from superior local knowledge.—A wag called this "Pennant's Tour in Chester."

What is called sentimental writing, although it be understood to appeal solely to the heart, may be the product of a bad one. One would imagine that Sterne had been a man of a very tender heart; yet I know, from indubitable authority, that his mother, who kept a school, having run in debt, on account of an extravagant daughter, would have rotted in jail if the parents of her scholars had not raised a subscription for her. Her son had too much sentiment to have any feeling. A dead ass was more important to him than a living mother.

QUERIES.

Q. Why is a clergyman's horse like the King?

A. Because he is guided by a minister.

Q. What is that which makes every body sick but those who swallow it?

A. Flattery.

Q. Why are there three objections to taking a glass of brandy and water?

A. Because there are three scruples to a dram.

Q. What is that which you may safely touch, innocently play with, and put in your bosom, but to clip it is certain death?

A. A Guinea.

Q. Why are the writings of the Spectator like Rodgers' penknives?

A. Because they are finely tempered with Steele, (Sir Richard S.)

Q. Pray tell me ladies, if you can,
Who is that highly favored man,
Who, tho' he's married many a wife,
May still live single all his life?

A. A Clergyman.—London Paper.

EPIGRAMS—BY A CORRESPONDENT.

I. To see thee lady, and admire,
Is all that we durst do,
To love we never must aspire—
Thou'rt fair—but cruel too!

II. I've told thee oft thine eyes were suns
That beam'd with orient light,—
More like the moon that day-light shuns,
They sparkle best at night!

III. You lov'd me, but I've ne'er confest
The strangeness of that fate,
That saw me truly, only blest,
When honoured by thy hate.

IV. Believe me not, dear girl, when I,
Affect to act the lover—
Not having learnt to "look a lie,"
Myself you'd soon discover!

V. Lady! a pair of gems thine eyes,
Their lustre most refin'd;
But thou can'st boast a richer prize—
The jewel of the mind!

LOVE.

Yes, life is but a waste,
A cheerless pathway, where
No healthy fruit allures the taste,
No flowerets balm the air,
If Love
The wild rose, ne'er luxuriates there.

Love is a guide, when lorn,
The wanderer is astray,
'Mid dangers and no star of dawn
To shine upon his way.
'Tis Love
Pierces the gloom, the wretch to save.

Along affliction's coast,
Hard by despair's grim sheal,
She shines on him the tempest tost,
The light-house of the soul;
And guides
Where storms are hush'd, no oceans roll.

O thou Inspirer! who
Sang to my infancy,
And half life's rugged journey through
Hast still attended me,
I consecrate
My all to thee, to only thee!

When pleasure's mellow note
Allur'd me to her bowers,
Thou bad'st kind dreams of fancy float
Along the white-wing'd hours.
Thy smile
Did'st strew existence path with flowers.

The lightning cross'd my way,
Thou cam'st and in its scathe,
I but discerned the tempered ray
Of Love around my path.
A pillar given
When all was tempest, night and wrath.

Be nigh at the dread hour
Of nature's utmost need,
When unknown shadowy worlds appear,
And unreal scenes recede,
O then the spirit cheer,
And bid it on its passage speed!

Messrs. Editors,

How clearly Z. has proved by practical illustration, that man is not prone to run into the same errors for which he condemns others. Z. appears displeased at Ariel for his lack of liberality; and he has a right so to be, as he discovers himself to be possessed of that virtue in such a rare and eminent degree. Z. is not only the pink of generosity but of consistency. Instance—He requests Ariel to give him something more than mere declamatory fustian, at the same time calling him a school-boy—Now I humbly conceive that even Fustian is tolerable, and as much as can be expected from a school boy—But Z. consistently invites and expects more. I suppose that Z. from his thus throwing the gauntlet, wishes to cope with Ariel; and as Ariel, in Z's estimation is a school-boy, Z. no doubt thinks himself fit for such an antagonist—So do I—Z would doubtless make an excellent match for such a foe.

Z. says that any quibbler (or scribbler) can rail—True, and call names—

"This he has proved in all his practice;
No argument like matter of fact is"

Z. observes that when raillery extends to deprecate virtuous principle, the author (i. e. Ariel) deserves pity—that he militates common sense, common decency, &c. True, Ariel has abused many principles of virtue in the few stanzas he has written in the Evening Post, for he has found fault with Pasquin, Winsor, &c. &c! and these (Z. would insinuate) are synonimous with virtue, common sense and common decency—Ergo—Ariel in deprecating these bards, abuses virtue, sense and decency!! Ergo—Ariel is truly pitiable—Therefore Z in fighting for Pasquin, Winsor, &c. fights for the support of decency, sense, and virtue—And he who militates against or disagrees with Z. cannot possess any of the essence of the aforementioned bards.

Z asserts that these bards have received the commendation of men of taste—and they please Z. therefore Z. is a man of taste. He remarks that ridicule from some persons is an excellent criterion of merit. Although I cannot admit the principle, yet if there be any truth in it, Ariel (in my opinion) has some slight reason to thank Z.

Z. observes in a hackneied and currish simile, that "Dogs dirty those they love, &c"—Knowing this why does he fawn upon Pasquin. But from Z's commencement Cur, rather than Dog is the fitter simile—a Cur rampant, that rushes in mewing a rat! a rat! and flies to clawing and besmirching Ariel in true grimalkin style.

Query—Was it modesty, or good will towards Ariel, that hindered Z. from finishing the sentence, and exclaiming "dead for a ducat." Answer—Both.

To conclude—as Z. does not expect that Ariel will be honoured by a notice of any of the bards (i. e. sense, decency and virtue) that he has abused, Z. can hardly suppose that Ariel will notice a scurrilous antagonist, and one too that hobbles into the arena on crutches of prose. O. P.

Foreign Intelligence.

The Packet ship Nestor, captain Macey, arrived at New-York on Saturday evening from Liverpool, whence she sailed on the 16th June, brings London papers to the 14th of June, and Liverpool to the 15th, inclusive.

The Nestor has brought no intelligence of much interest or importance. After so many reports and counter-reports, marches and counter-marches, the prospect of a war between Turkey and Russia has vanished. In his reply to the chamber of deputies, the king of France announces his satisfaction, that peace will not be interrupted in the east.

On the 7th of June, the West India Trade Bill was read a third time and passed.

The distresses in Ireland still continued severe; but the most active exertions were making for their relief.

France remained tranquil. A duel had been fought between Benjamin Constant, and the Marquis Forbin des Issarts. They both took chairs, seated themselves at the distance of ten paces, and in that situation exchanged two shots without effect, when the seconds interfered and terminated the affair.

James Stewart, Esq. was tried at Edinburgh on the 10th of June, for murder in the duel between him and Sir A. Boswell, in which the latter was killed. After conferring a few minutes, the jury returned a verdict of not guilty.

Spain continued to be agitated with disaffection and sedition. It was reported, [illegible] the Spanish minister at the Court of [illegible]ond, had returned a note in answer to M. Zea, the Colombian ambassador, in which Spain invites the European powers not to recognize the independence of South America.

The Spanish government had been apprised of our recognition of the independence of her colonies. The news was brought by chevalier Banos, the second secretary of the Spanish Legation, who sailed from this port, on the 18th April, for Gibraltar.

Lisbon papers to the 2d of June had been received at London, but contained nothing of interest.

A despatch from St. Petersburg, for the 21st of May, announced the intention of the Emperor to continue the negociations in conjunction with his allies.

A private letter from Vienna, of May 30th, states, that Count Nesselrode was immediately expected there on a private mission from the Emperor of Russia.

It is confidently stated, that the Russian troops will still remain upon the frontiers of Turkey, and that the Emperor will soon set out to review them.

The Augsburg Gazette states, that the Greek squadron of 70 vessels had attacked the Turkish squadron, consisting of 22 ships, and succeeded in burning two of the line, two frigates, one corvette, three brigs, and four gun-boats. It was supposed this event would increase the fury of the Turks, which continued to vent itself in the perpetration of the most barbarous atrocities.

Among the subjects to be discussed by the next Diet of Switzerland, is the proposition for opening a commercial intercourse with Colombia.

The Abbe Frayssinous, the preacher, who recommended that the mass of the people should not be allowed to learn to read and write, is said to be placed at the head of the education of France. This appointment is sufficient to show the sincere and liberal views of the government towards the people.

It is stated that the King's journey to the Continent had been postponed, owing to ministers having objected to it on the ground of the expense which would be incurred, at a moment when the whole country was so clamorous for reform and retrenchment.

The widow of Carlisle, who is in prison as well as her husband, was lately brought to bed of a daughter in Dorchester jail, which she named Hypatica, after the celebrated female philosopher of Alexandria, who filled the Professor's chair in the 4th century, and was afterwards murdered in a manner which reflected no extraordinary credit upon St. Cyril and his clergy.

The heat had been very oppressive in England during the early part of the month of June. In London the thermometer was up to 85 degrees, and in Warwick on the 8th of June, it was 95 in the shade—Thirteen post horses had ended their miserable existence in one day, on Ascat race course, and several fine horses belonging to coach proprietors, dropped down and died on the road between the Heath and London.

The little town of Sanas, in Bohemia, was destroyed by fire on the 4th of May; 130 very pretty houses, the church, and town-hall, were destroyed, and two persons lost their lives.

The case of Olive, claiming to be princess of Cumberland, has been again postponed in the Prerogative Court, after a learned argument by Dr. Lushington.

A royal levee was held at Carlton house on the 12th, which was attended by upwards of a thousand persons. Washington Irving, Esq. was presented by the American minister. His majesty's second Drawing Room for the season was held on the 13th of June. Six columns of the Courier of the 14th are occupied in announcing the names of the persons who attended, and in describing the dresses of the ladies.

Ascot Races.—The heath was honoured on the 6th of June with the presence of his majesty, the Duke of York, and other princes of the blood royal, together with a numerous collection of ladies of the nobility and gentry.

M. Poletica, the late Russian ambassador to this government, arrived at Liverpool on the 5th of June. Stephen Price, Esq. and Mr. Wallack the performer, had also arrived; but the latter had not yet recovered from his late accident, not being able to walk without the use of crutches.

A third edict by the Chinese Viceroy has been received, containing a command to the Hong merchants, to urge, and compel the delivering up of the foreign murderers.—"The sum of the matter is this," says Jaow Kwang, "that for a man killed, it is absolutely necessary that a life be forfeited.—It is not by any means an affair that can be terminated by empty talk and reasonings."

It is reported that the celebrated patriot General Quiroga, is to come out to Cuba as Commander in Chief, with 8000 troops.

General Dumourier, a commander in the French Revolution, now nearly 84 years of age, resides in London.

SEA SERPENT.—A gentleman of the strictest veracity, it is stated in the New-York papers, has lately had a full and perfect view, every way, at Nahant, (Mass.) of his majesty the SEA SERPENT, which answered, in every respect, the description already given of him. His length was supposed to be about 70 feet; and when disposed to breathe the pure air of the watering places in that neighborhood, he occasionally raised his head seven or eight feet above the surface of the mighty deep. The Boston Evening Gazette gives the following article relating to this surprising visiter:

The Sea Serpent.—Several gentlemen at Nahant, on Sunday last, had a distant view of this celebrated Monster of the deep, whose periodical return is now ascertained. Since which he has been seen every day by different individuals of the highest respectability.

The Evening Post.

PHILADELPHIA.

Saturday, August 3, 1822.

We neglected to mention in the last number, our intention of continuing the present Volume until the end of the year—after which, each succeeding January will commence a new series.

At a meeting of the Board of Health of the city of New-York, on Thursday morning last, the cases of Fever which had occurred in Rector street, it was the opinion of an eminent physician, originated from the noxious atmosphere of that particularly district, and were not of a malignant or pestiferous character calculated to endanger the health of the city—in proof of which, it was alleged that those who had recovered had been administered with emetics, which were considered fatal to all patients supposed to be ill of the yellow fever. It was, however, unequivocally acknowledged that there had been several instances of this alarming disease, and measures were devised such as would be necessary to inspire confidence as to the vigilance of the members of the board, should the city be afflicted with any sickness of a contagious nature.

A SWINDLER.—A young man, who said his name was Richard Smith, apparently about 18 or 20 years of age, hired a horse and gig at Mr. John Carter's livery stables, on Sunday last, with the intention, as he said, of going to Lancaster.—As he has not been heard of since, it is supposed that he has eloped. A reward of $40 has been offered for his apprehension.

A frame house in the Northern Liberties, was struck by lightning on Sunday evening last—several persons were in it at the time, none of whom were injured.

A proposal has been made for constructing a Canal across the Jersies, to connect our waters and the Raritan river, for the sum of $250,000, provided the land necessary to compass such an undertaking could be obtained without any additional expence. There cannot be a doubt that the accomplishment of such a project would be attended with many local advantages; though we do not think that it will be shortly fulfilled.

On Thursday afternoon of last week, a son of Mr. Adam Baker, of the Northern Liberties, aged 10 years, was drowned at Bickley's wharf, near the High Bridge. On Saturday afternoon last, two lads, the sons of Mr. Hollebush and Mr. Sebastian Zimmerman, were drowned in the Delaware, opposite Poole's Bridge.

FROM CANTON.—The ship Addison, Capt. Hewitt, arrived at this port, on Sunday last, having performed the voyage out and back, in the remarkable short space of two hundred and ninety days—discharging her outward, and taking in a full return cargo included. Capt. Hewitt reports, that the British shipping had returned to Wampoa, and that the trade had been resumed as before the disturbances took place, which were to be referred to the two governments for settlement.

The Crops.—The accounts from every part of the Union, as to the prospect of an abundant harvest, are every way cheering. The late seasonable rains had greatly invigorated the Indian corn, so that no doubt remains of a fair average crop of this invaluable and nutricious product.

DEATHS DURING THE LAST WEEK.

In this city, there was 101 deaths—61 of which were children under five years of age—25 died of the cholera morbus.

In New York, there was 92, of whom 37 were under the age of one year.

In Baltimore, there were 54—of whom 19 were under one year of age.

Edmund J. Hollinshead and James L. Dixon were committed to prison, on the evening of Thursday last, by Squire Wolfe, charged with attempting to defraud the Camden Bank, by offering two checks for payment, which are declared to be forgeries.

COUNTERFEITING.

On Saturday last two counterfeit checks, calling for $4,500, were presented at the office of the Camden Bank in this city. They were detected by the officer of the bank before payment was made. The person by whom the checks were presented, precipitately left the office to fetch the person whom he said had given him the Checks. He was closely pursued and at length arrested, examined and fully committed for trial.

This attempted fraud has led to the discovery of the person who recently caused a written counterfeit check for $2,400 to be presented at the Bank of the United States. It will be recollected that this check was presented by a boy who was unable to find the person who gave him the check. He is now identified and proves to be the same person who presented the checks at the office of the Camden Bank. We have much satisfaction in stating the projector of these several forgeries has also been found and is now in prison awaiting his trial. He is the same person who stands charged with having originated the voyage of the Sloop Norfolk to defraud the Insurance offices.—It would be unjust not to state that much praise is due to Squire Wolf of Penn-township, for his industry and zeal to unravel this system of fraud and obtain the necessary proofs to put the perpetrators on their trial.—Dem. Press.

Extract of a letter from an officer on board the U. S. ship North Carolina.

"Our ship is one of the best sailers I ever saw, the John Adams and Cyane being in company, gave us a good opportunity of judging of her speed, and in the squalls, which were frequent, we stood as stiff as when lying alongside the wharf—her motion is very easy, in fact, she has not chafed or strained a rope yarn. The passage, though short, was a very rough one for the season. She works uncommonly well, and we all think her one of the greatest ships in the world, and regret we are not under orders for a long cruise, instead of our present destination."

Major JOHN NORRIS, was elected Colonel of the 73d Regiment Pennsylvania Militia, on the 29th ult. in the place of Col. R. M. PATTERSON, resigned.

ANOTHER HORRID PIRACY.

Capt. Fitz, of the schr. Olive, arrived at New York, from the Bahamas, informs, that about the middle of June, the wreckers had fallen in with a ship ashore to windward of Rum Key, THE CREW OF WHICH HAD BEEN CUT TO PIECES, AND WERE FOUND HANGING IN THE RIGGING! The wreckers had also picked up a brig at sea near the same place, entirely deserted—supposed to have been robbed by the pirates. The next gang of pirates who may be condemned to be executed in this country for their fiend-like cruelties, we presume will be pardoned.

ARRIVAL OF THE CONSTELLATION.

New York, July 31—The U S Frigate Constellation, Capt Ridgeley, arrived at this port yesterday, from the Pacific, the crew all in good health.

Capt. Ridgeley has given the following account of the state of affairs in Chili and Peru—The latest news from Lima was to the 7th of April. Upper Peru continued in quiet possession of the Royalists. La Serna was in Cusco, with 4000 men; Ramirez in Arequipa with about half that number. The people, (natives) were desirous of a change of government, but were kept quiet by the Royal troops. San Martin had created a force of 6000 men, and intended (as it was said) to take the field in person against them. The coast from Pisco to Chili, was in possession of the Royalists.—The two Spanish frigates that had been cruising in the Pacific, were given up to the Agent of San Martin in Guayaquil, in February last, for a trifling compensation; one of them, the Prueva, had arrived at Lima, the other, the Venganza, was taken possession of by Lord Cochrane, at Guayaquil, after having been near a month with the Peruvian flag flying. His Lordship was then at sea with his fleet, and had madeon determination to take the Prueva wherever he might find her.—Chiloe, (the most southern part of Chili,) was still in possession of the Royalists. An expedition of 160 men, in a frigate and sloop of war, sailed from Valparaiso against it, about the middle of April last.—They were to be reinforced at Valdivia. It was generally believed it would not be successful.

When the Constellation sailed from Rio, all was quiet there, as well as Pernambuco; Bahia was the only port in the hands of the Royalists.

LATE FROM SOUTH AMERICA.

The schooner General Stricker, arrived at Baltimore, in ten days from Mayagues, Porto Rico, reports that the barque America is still under seizure in Cabo Roxo, for damages estimated at $3,500 due the Spanish privateer which captured her.—The captain had arrived at Mayagues with part of his cargo, offering it at a sacrifice to raise the amount! Left the Piedera at Mayagues—she boards every thing that passes.

The Spanish private armed brigs Palmera and Palonia are cruising in the passage of Lamona.—It was reported at Mayagues the Palonia had fired into one of the U. S. schooners off Tortola, taking her for a Patriot privateer, and wounded the lieutenant and several men, and shot away the bulwarks.

Official accounts were received at St. Johns, P. R. that Gen Morillo had defeated the Patriots under general Penango and Soublette, in the province of Coro.—Gen. Penango was taken prisoner in the action, and Gen Soublette, with the remains of the Patriot army, was completely routed and dispersed.

Porto Cavello still held out—the Patriots had increased the blockade by two brigs from Buenos Ayres—The Spanish frigate Ligera of 44 guns, the sloop of war Beylen, of 26, brig Hercules, of 20, and schr Morillo, of 6 guns, are in Porto Cavello. The garrison is regularly supplied from Porto Rico and Curracos, under the protection of their vessels.

News was received at St. Johns from St. Thomas, that a vessel had arrived there from Rio Caribi, in the province of Cumana, with Patriot emigrants, in consequence of the negroes having taken possession of the Coast of Para, (North of Oronoke.) Great fears were entertained by them for the safety of the white inhabitants of the coast.

BRAZILS.

The Baltimore Federal Gazette states, on verbal information, that according to the latest information from Rio Janeiro, a complete change had taken place in the government of Brazil, by a peaceful, but effectual revolution. A Sovereign National Congress has been elected by the people, in which the legislative power is vested, and which perhaps virtually controuls, or regulates all other departments of the government. The prince, as king Joseph VI. is nominally the executive head of the nation, which is declared to be independent, and wholly freed from all subservient connexion with Portugal.

Rio Janeiro papers had also been received of a late date, one of which contained the Brazillian Declaration of Independence, and a letter from the Prince Regent to the King of Portugal, on the subject of the new government, which had for its basis the representative system of a Cortes, &c. The papers were in the hands of a translator.

FROM GOTTENBURG.

Capt. Page, of the ship Washington, has arrived at Providence from Gottenburg, after an absence of two years. The correspondence between the Russian Minister and the Secretary of State, respecting the trade on the Northwest Coast, had been received at Gottenburg. The Swedes were much gratified that the United States opposed with so much firmness the extravagant claims of Russia.

MIRROR OF LIFE.

TO SHOW THE VERY AGE AND BODY OF THE TIMES, ITS FORM AND PRESSURE.

The Connecticut Courant informs us, that during the storm on Wednesday evening week, the lightning struck a tree in Farmington, and killed forty-six sheep which had collected under it. They were principally of the Merino breed, and belonged to Mr. Egbert Cowles, of that town.

There were five hundred and seventy-five visiters at the Saratoga Springs on Monday week.

The degree of LL. D. has been conferred by Union College, at Schenectady, N. Y. upon the Hon. John Sergeant, of this city.

A house in Salem, (N. J.) very narrowly escaped being burned, through the carelessness of servants, a few days since. Ashes contained in a wooden bucket, had been deposited in the cellar over night, which taking fire communicated to a bag of rags hanging near.

Suicide.—A Mrs. Stephens, of Groton, Tompkins county, N. Y. committed suicide by hanging herself on the 15th ult. She had been affected by religious impressions previously to this time, and it is supposed she was in a state of mental derangement, arising from her convictions, which led her to commit this melancholy deed.

A Lottery is advertised in Delaware, for the purpose of drawing comfortable births in a burying ground.

Forty of the young gentlemen who graduated at the late examination at the Military Academy, West Point, have been commissioned as second lieutenants, and attached to the different corps and regiments of the army of the United States.

Fevers, &c. are said to prevail throughout the southern states generally, in consequence of the extreme heat of the weather.

The New-Yorkers have invited the duke of York, to send his fine horse Moses to that city, in one of the packets; and they will stake 10,000 dollars, that Eclipse will beat him.

The water in the Connecticut river, at Windsor, Vt. rose 8 feet in the space of 24 hours, in consequence of rains on the 11th and 12th ult. Great damage was done to the roads.

A shock of an Earthquake was felt at Eastport on the 18th ult which lasted about 15 seconds.

Accident.—A Mr. James Lambert, an elderly gentleman, a native of Boston, was so severely hurt by the falling of a chimney at Baltimore, on Sunday evening, that he expired on Monday.

A fourth line of Liverpool packet ships has been formed in New-York by Messrs. Fish & Grinnell, and Thaddeus Phelps & Co. to sail on the 8th of every month.—Thus regular packet ships sail from New-York for Liverpool, on the 1st, 8th, 16th, and 24th of every month.

Joseph Bonaparte, Ex-King of Spain, passed through the village of Buffalo last week, on his way to visit Niagara Falls, in company with Captain Basy, who commanded the gun brig which conveyed Napoleon from the Island of Elba, on his return to France, in 1815.

Distressing.—On Wednesday week, a lady while in the act of going into the surf, to bathe, at Cape May Beach, was suddenly seized with convulsions, and brought to the shore by her attendants—a corpse! So melancholy and sudden an event shed a gloom on this, otherwise, arena of gaiety.

Murder.—An affray took place in Armstrong county, Pennsylvania, on the 8th ult. between John Macanish, jr. and William Russell, who were brothers-in-law, in which Russel was killed.

From the notices which have occasionally appeared in the Charleston papers, and from extracts of letters from Charleston, which are published in the eastern papers, it appears that the late conspiracy among the slaves has been of such a nature and extent as to demand many victims from among the deluded people who were engaged in it. The number of persons already condemned to death amounts to nearly fifty. Dreadful, but inexorable necessity!

The Governor of Charleston has respited the execution of ten of the negroes to the 9th of August. Twenty-two of these culprits were executed on the 26th July.

The following singular occurrence took place at Hardwick, (Mass.) on the 10th ult. Eleanor Smith, 15 years of age, threw up from her stomach a live green snake, nine or ten inches in length, which she had probably taken in three years since, while drinking at a brook. During that time she had been confined to her bed, and had become much emaciated. The snake was perfectly lively, running about the house, upon chairs, tables, &c. She is now free from pain, and is apparently on the recovery.

In consequence of the publication of an incorrect report of war having been declared between Russia and Turkey, a few days since, a merchant in Boston who believed the news, bought a large quantity of opium, amounting to $40,000, calculating that should the war continue, this article would command a fine market in Europe. The report being unfounded, the opium remains a drug on the hands of the purchaser, who in consequence has failed.

Enchanting Garden.—The New-York Statesman says, that the Linnæn Garden, owned by the Messrs. Princes, of Flushing, on Long Island, contains upwards of 4000 different species of plants, collected from every quarter of the globe. There are two large and venerable oaks standing near this delightful garden, under which the celebrated Geo. Fox, a Quaker, preached in 1672—a century and a half ago!—Nearly opposite these ancient trees, stands a wooden dwelling house, which was built in the year 1661. It has regularly descended through five generations of the same family.

INDIANA STATE BANK.

At a late trial in Vincennes, (Ind.) in the name of the State against the State Bank, on a writ of Quo Warranto, the jury returned a verdict of guilty on many serious charges alledged by the Counsel on behalf of the prosecution; and the Court in consequence of this verdict, pronounced judgment of forfeiture of the charter of the Institution.

INDIAN WARFARE.

It is stated that a destructive war exists at this time among the Sauks and Foxes, and the Sioux Indians of the interior. The Sauks and Foxes had taken the field, to the number of about 600 men, and a war party of those Indians had returned to their village, at the head of the Rapids of the De Moine, bringing with them 20 scalps and 14 children as prisoners, taken from the Sioux. The Sauks and Foxes lost one man on the field of battle, and brought home 6 or 7 wounded, one of whom is since dead.

TOBACCO.

An experiment has been tried with success, at Greensburgh, (Penn.) to raise tobacco plants in a hot bed, from seed procured at Havana. The seed was of that sort, raised in the island of Cuba, from which the tobacco is obtained that is used in making segars, and which brings $80 a cwt. Some of the leaves of what has been raised at Greensburgh measured 23 inches in length, and 16 in breadth: and several cart loads had been cut and housed on the 20th of last month. The blossoms of some stalks left for seed, had fallen off, and the pods were full of seed.

Candles with wooden wicks.—A writer in the Aurora, states the result of an experiment he has made with wood for candlewick. The wood was of a cypress shingle, split to the size of a rye straw, and made round, so that the coat of cotton, which was applied, might be more easily put on by rolling the stick upon a card which contained the cotton, and which had been previously well carded. The candle with the wooden wick lasted 7 hours, while one of the same size (six to the pound) with cotton wick lasted but 5 hours. Agreeably to this experiment, a pound of candles will last 42 hours, when they would only last 30 made after the usual way.

The Rochester Telegraph of July 23d, mentions the death of Squire Hill, who was killed by a man named Nichols, in the town of Gates. He and Nichols had been hoeing corn in company with several others. Some words of levity passed between them and a scuffle ensued. This terminated without injury to either. After an interval of some hours, Nichols, without further provocation, struck Hill on the head with a hoe, which gave him a mortal wound. Hill lingered several days and expired.

The association of counterfeiters in the vicinity of the lines have of late stolen a copper still, and have applied themselves to the manufacture of the copper into half Eagles and half Dollars. The imitation as are told is excellent; and the fruits of this mint are now, or soon will be in circulation in this city; this is worthy of notice, and the vigilance of our citizens should be awakened to detect attempts to pass off this new product of the still.

EXTRAORDINARY CIRCUMSTANCE.

On Monday, the 8th ult. a small Terrier Dog, was put on board the sloop Ann Maria, capt. Gardner, by the owner, in New York, to be transported to Rhode Island, with a view of saving him from the dreadful operation of the dog law.—In the course of the day, there having been a rough sea, the dog exhibited symptoms of illness, and appeared scarcely able to walk. In the evening he could not be found, and it was concluded he had fallen overboard and was lost. Nothing more was thought of the circumstance until Tuesday night, the 20th ult. when the steward, having occasion to open a small porter locker, (about 2½ feet square,) there found the poor animal alive! It is ascertained that the locker was fastened on the evening of the 8th, and had not again been opened till the 20th. The dog must therefore have been confined a period of twenty-two days without food or drink.—He was much emaciated of course, but now partakes of nourishment, and it is thought will recover.

FATAL ACCIDENT.

Mr. James Gwinn, son of sheriff Gwinn of Huntingdon, Maryland, was on Friday week mortally wounded by the accidental discharge of a pistol. The circumstances, as we have heard, are as follows: Mr. Gwinn and some others were preparing to go in pursuit of a fellow by the name of M'Crum, who had escaped from the jail of that county, some time last spring, where he had been confined on a charge of passing counterfeit money, and who had lately been seen in the neighborhood.—They were charging their pistols when one in the hands of a young man in company went off, and the contents lodged in the body of Mr. Gwinn.

Wonderful Escape.—A short time since, a son of Mr. Thomas Pickering, of Newington, New-Hampshire, of the age of six years and four months, fell head foremost into a well over forty feet in depth, with about three feet of water in it at the time. In his fall he struck his hip against a stout iron bucket, (that was also descending in the well from a windlass to which it was attached by a rope,) which turned him head uppermost. The force with which he struck was so great as to flatten the bucket considerably. He remained in the well nearly twenty minutes, drenched in water, with no one to help him; at last, by his own exertion, with the assistance of the rope, he succeeded in getting out, with only two slight wounds on his head and hip! What renders it still more astonishing how such a child, wounded and weakened by his fall, should be able to gain the summit and extricate himself is, that one of his hands was maimed by fire and almost useless, the well so broad that he could not stride across it, and the aperture at the platform is only 18 inches in diameter.

The Saturday Mails.

NEW YORK, Aug. 2.

Board of Health.—The Board met at 12 o'clock yesterday. Leonard Archer, reported on Wednesday as being sick at Mr. Rose's, corner of Greenwich and Rector street, died yesterday morning. No new case of the prevailing fever was reported, and no person has been taken sick in Rector street or its vicinity within the last five days.

We learn from our Boston correspondents, that the U. S. schr. Porpoise sailed from St. Thomas on the 11th ult. bound to the leeward. The commander of the Spanish privateer, which fired on the Porpoise, had made a written apology to capt. Ramage.

The Constellation frigate came up yesterday from the quarantine ground, and anchored at the Navy Yard. While passing Governor's Island, she fired a national salute.

The U. S. schr. Alligator, was beating out of the harbor yesterday. It is understood she is bound on a cruise in the W. India seas.

DARING ROBBERY.

Yesterday morning about 6 o'clock, while the boy attending the store of Messrs. F. & W. D. Avery, 114 Pearl street, was engaged in opening the windows, &c. a stout negro entered and enquired for Mr. Avery, saying that he wanted to buy some goods. The boy replied that Mr. A. was not in, upon which he immediately tore from a piece of Madeira bilkfs. one, which he tied about the boy's mouth, then with a piece of twine tied his hands, after which he shut down the windows, locked the door, and commenced opening the drawers, in one of which he found the store pocket book, containing between 50 and 60 dollars in money, and notes amounting to between eight and nine hundred dollars. Upon finding then a ball of twine in his search, he tied the boy to a post in the back part of the store.—He then opened the desk with the key which he found in the pocket book, (having on occasion to use a large chissel which he had secreted about him for that purpose,) and took out about 8 or 10 dollars in change; after which, turning to the boy, he said if he told of the transaction, or described his person or dress, that he would murder him if he should meet him in the street. The scene was closed by his locking the door on the outside, depositing the key under the door, and deliberately walking off with his booty.

Canine Sagacity.—A person in the upper wards of the city, having some money to pay to another person, called upon him with the same, but found that he was not home; his dog, however, was present and eyed the man, and saw the money in his hands. Calling the second time he found his man in, and putting his hand into his pocket he discovered that he had lost his money. Immediately retracing his steps down the street, he perceived the dog at a distance, standing motionless on the pavement, and on coming up to him he discovered that the dog had found the bank bills, amounting to 80 dollars, which he held tightly between his fore paws, until he surrendered the sum to its rightful owner. This is among the many proofs of sagacity and value of this noble animal.

A very pretty, modest girl lately brought a writ against a faithless swain for a breach of the marriage promise, damages where laid at $2000. She accompanied the officer to identify the defendant, a young mechanic—but the honest officer, instead of carrying him to the prison, carried him to a parson, where, both parties being willing, he stood for groomsman, and saw the parties lawfully married and the writ cancelled. "Blessed are the peace makers."—Jubilate.

A noted Counterfeiter.—Roswel Sturdivant, a celebrated counterfeiter, who has for several years inundated the country with spurious bank bills, has, at last, been apprehended near Shawneetown, (Illinois.) A party consisting of six entered the house by stratagem, and surprised the gang in the midst of their unlawful employment. On conveying Sturdivant and his brother to prison, several attempts were made by their associates to release them, but without success.

Governor Clark, of Georgia, has issued his proclamation offering a reward of one hundred dollars, for the apprehension of Isaac Nichols, suspected of having murdered a negro boy. Nichols is about 5 feet 10 inches high, sandy hair, and by trade a hatter.

A proposition has been started in the Niagara (Upper Canada) Gleaner, to connect Lakes Erie and Ontario by a canal that would be sufficient to carry vessels large enough to navigate both lakes.

Another libel suit.—The Boston Evening Gazette states that Capt. Hull has directed a prosecution to be commenced against the editors of the Boston Gazette, for publishing an article under the signature of "The Reporter."

DOVER, (Delaware,) July 29.

A man by the name of Benjamin Hammond, residing near this town, was killed by lightning in the gust of Wednesday last. At the time the gust was rising, he was ploughing in his field, and took shelter under an apple tree to avoid the rain, when he met the awful dispensation of Divine providence.

A couple of men in a state of intoxication at Bower's Beach, on Saturday the 20th inst named Dill and Strothers, fell into a dispute respecting the hire of a small boat, and after Dill had given Strothers a number of blows, Strothers procured a gun with which he shot Dill, of which wound it is said Dill will die, the contents of the gun having lodged in his abdomen. Strothers is now confined in the gaol at Dover.

DRAMATIC SUMMARY.

TIVOLI THEATRE.—We notice with pleasure the announcement of Mr. Porter's benefit for this evening. The merits of this gentleman, both as regards his public and private character, are generally known to the lovers of the drama, and on this occasion we hope they will meet a suitable return. The tragedy of Alexander the Great, or the Rival Queens, is the performance selected, the part of Alexander to be personified by the young gentleman whose recent appearance on our boards has excited such general approbation.

YORK, (Pa.)—Mr. Taylor, the actor of All-Work, is now exhibiting his powers of Ventriloquism here, with various other talents which he possesses in dramatic recitations.

BALTIMORE.—Mr. M'Cleary, from Philadelphia, has taken the Pavilion Garden, and by the assistance of Mr. Anness, intends amusing the lovers of comic songs, &c. occasionally in his way.

WASHINGTON CITY.—Mr. Booth, the tragedian, has been engaged for five nights, and made his first appearance on Thursday eve, as Richard III.

NEW-YORK.—Last evening, Mrs. Entwisle appeared at the City Theatre, as Imogene in the tragedy of Bertram. Her benefit and the last night of her second engagement, was announced for this evening—at which she would personate Belvidere in the tragedy of Venice Preserved.

The melo-drama of Blue-Beard, or Female Curiosity, in which the large living Elephant, Columbus, is introduced, with all the Horses, has been exhibiting at the Circus, for this week past.

BOSTON.—On Monday evening, at the Washington Garden, the new melo drama of Adeline, or the Victim of Seduction, translated from the French, by our countryman, J. H. Payne, Esq. was produced for the first time, with several other entertainments, for the benefit of Miss Johnson.

Mr. Nichols, the American Ventriloquist, is at present amusing the citizens of Boston.

CINCINNATI.—The Pavilion theatre is now open, at which, on the 19th ult. the performances were, the petite comedy of Matrimony, and a variety of interesting feats in Natural Philosophy by Messrs. Dumilieu and Charles.

EXETON, (Geo.)—The Theatre at this place was destroyed by fire on the 10th ult. The company of Mr. Young had just arrived, and had performed for the first time on the evening previous. The wardrobe was entirely lost.

LYNCHBURG, (Vir.)—The Richmond company of Comedians purpose opening the Theatre at this place, for a short season.

NEW ORLEANS.—Mr. Pepin gave a grand entertainment at the Circus, in the display of various extraordinary exploits of Horsemanship, by his whole company, on the 4th of July.

FOREIGN.—Mr. Kean, it is expected, by letters received from England, will shortly return to this country. Mr. Braham, the celebrated Vocalist, is also said to have decided on crossing the Atlantic—the lovers of exquisite singing, will not fail to hail his arrival as a fortunate occurrence. John Stephen Kemble, the great master of the English stage, died at Grove near Durham, on the 5th of June, after a short illness, aged 65 years. Mr. I. Wallack had arrived at Liverpool, but his recovery from the effects of his stage-coach adventure, was still procrastinated.

A boxing match in England, recently terminated in the death of one of the parties. It is a pity, says the editor of the Charleston Courier, that they should ever terminate otherwise.

To elude the payment of the excise, large quantities of burnt grain have been recently sold in Ireland, under the name of vegetable breakfast powder.

Gibbs and Independence!

TUNE—"I knew by the Smoke," &c.

I KNEW by the sign that was plac'd at the door,
That the "Temple of Fortune" by GIBBS was kept there,
And I said that if wealth could give bliss to the poor,
Then Gibbs is the man who their bosoms can cheer.
One evening in Third street I loiter'd around,
My heart was depress'd, and my purse almost bare,
And duns in my ears were beginning to sound,
Dull music for those who've no money to spare.
Then in the bright "Temple of Fortune," I cried,
With my small stock of money a ticket I'll buy,
And when all my wants by a prize I've supply'd,
How blest can I live, and how calm can I die.
From yon "Temple of Fortune" a card I procur'd,
Which replenish'd my pockets, so empty before,
And 'tis sweet to reflect, that tho' duns I've endur'd,
I ne'er shall be troubled by duns any more.
For the sweet little card which from Gibbs I obtain'd,
Was my passport to wealth and to happiness too,
And, reader! a few more at Gibbs' remain'd,
Go purchase, perchance there's a passport for you,

THE OLIO.

"Variety's the very spice of life,
That gives it all its flavour."

SINGLE BLESSEDNESS.

Let no repugnance to a single state,
Lead to a union with a worthless mate,
Although 'tis true you'll find full many a fool
Would make old maids the butt of ridicule,
A single lady, though advanced in life,
Is much more happy than an ill-match'd wife.

A Frenchman being about to remove from his shop, his landlord enquired the reason, stating at the same time, that it was considered a very good stand for business. The Frenchman replied, with a shrug of the shoulders, Oh, yes, he's very good stand for de business; by gar me stand all day, no body come to make me move.

A person who went to the Judge of Probates to get out letters of administration, to administer on his father's estate, who had lately deceased, asked the Judge if he was Judge of Reprobates. "No, sir," replied the Judge, "I am Judge of Probates," "That's no difference," replied the former. "Well, what's your will," said the Judge: "Why, my father died detested, and left five infidels, of whom I am chief, and I want to get out letters of condemnation, that I may diminish the estate as fast as possible."

"I wish," said old Sheridan one day to his son Tom, "that you would take a wife." "I have no objection, Sir," replied Tom reverently, "but whose wife shall I take?"

The following anecdote is related in the history of painting in Italy:

"In 1793, the Prussian officers of the garrison of Colberg established an economical mess, of which certain poor emigrants were glad to partake. They observed one day an old major of hussars, who was covered with the scars of wounds received in the 'seven year's war,' and half hidden by enormous grey mustachios. The conversation turned on duels. A young stout-built cornet began to prate in an authoritative tone on the subject. 'And you, Major, how many duels have you fought?' 'None, thank Heaven,' answered the hussar, in a subdued voice; 'I have fourteen wounds, and Heaven be praised, they are not in my back; so I may be permitted to say, that I feel myself happy in never having fought a duel.' 'By Jove! you shall fight one with me,' exclaimed the cornet, reaching across to give him a blow. But the sacrilegious hand did not touch the old mustachios. The Major, agitated, grasped the table to assist him in rising, when a unanimous cry was raised, 'Stehen sie ruhig herr major!' 'Don't stir, Mr. Major!' All the officers present seized the cornet, threw him out at the window, and sat down again to table as if nothing had occurred."

A Cockney London Alderman, lately reading the bloody news from Ireland to his spouse, by the fireside, suddenly burst out into an exclamation, 'Good lack! Vell, Mrs. Muggins, I never could make you believe them there Hirish had vings! Read for yourself, Ma'am, and be convinced.'

Mrs. Muggins—'In the neighbourhood of Killharry, a number of these deluded miscreants appeared in arms, about one o'clock on Tuesday last, but at the approach of the military they began to fly in all directions to the mountains.'—'Well, thank God, Mr. Muggins, they are not birds of passage.'—London paper.

Duelling.—Readers of newspapers often find light amusement in what is termed cross-readings. The following may be called sign-reading. In front of two adjoining houses, we literally read the brief history of a duel:—

James Schott—and—Jonathan Fell.

The following toast was given in Georgia, on the 4th July:

The Emperor of Russia—He may perhaps manage a Turkey, but let him beware how he tampers with an Eagle.

Narrow minds are like crooked bottles—the less they have in them the more noise they make in pouring out.

Disappointed Curiosity.—Swift relates the story of a servant girl, who walked 7 miles in the rain to see a man hanged, and who returned crying and sobbing because he was reprieved.

Anderson recommends that Cows be milked three times a day in summer when full fed. If a cow is not milked dry each time, the quantity diminishes; and if milked dry, the best milk is obtained. The first cream which rises is the best.

Remedies for the Cholera Morbus.

Salt of Tartar, 1 thimble full; Water, half a pint; Lime Juice, to make it acid; Peppermint, a few drops—Sweetened with Loaf Sugar.

Or,—Burn a Cork thoroughly to a cinder—powder it very fine—then take a tea spoon full of this powder and another of Loaf Sugar, powdered, and mix them together, and wet it with Brandy.

Both of these remedies should be kept in the house, corked up in bottles, ready for an emergency.

It is somewhat singular that not so much as half a century since Spain should have been the second European power that acknowledged the independence of the British North American colonies; and those very colonies, now the United States, are the first power to acknowledge the Independence of the Spanish South American colonies. Thus, as Shakspear happily expresses it, 'doth even-handed justice return the poisoned chalice even to our own lips.'—London Courier, May 31.

CAUTION.

AS the season is advancing that brings with it all the local diseases, that is common to hot climates and weather, such as Cholera Morbuses, Bowel Complaints and Bilious Affections. The Medicines for the above complaints that I have formerly prepared, I am not in a situation to accommodate the public with this season. I have therefore availed myself of the opportunity of communicating to Mr RICHARD JORDAN, Apothecary, the knowledge of preparing my medicines genuine, so that those persons who know the merits of them need not be at a loss to procure them as chaste as they formerly have been received from me.

JOSEPH HAWKINS.

The subscriber having the most implicit confidence (from his knowledge of the efficacy of the aforesaid Medicines,) feels no hesitation in recommending them to the public.

CARD.

JOHN CARTER, Jun. respectfully informs the public, that his establishment on the Bank of the River Schuylkill, near the FALLS, formerly known by the name of Mendenhall's, has been opened since the commencement of the Spring season, and that he is ready to receive those visiters who may be disposed to honor him with their custom and commands.

He takes leave to acquaint the ladies and gentlemen of the metropolis and its vicinity, that he is amply provided with every species of refreshments, and that he can supply them upon the most immediate requisition with Coffee, Tea and Sandwiches. Fish of all those denominations, with which that river abounds; Anchovey-Toast—Pickled Salmon—and all kinds of Relishes which it may please their fancy to demand, with the proper paraphernalia to each.

Gentlemen are informed that the grounds are so disposed as to afford sufficient room and accommodation for Quoit and Cricket, and other Ball Clubs, and that Hot or Cold Dinners can be served up for them at the shortest notice.

The drive to this place on the western side of the river, is extremely romantic—those who prefer the Ridge Road are informed that a Flat Boat is in constant readiness to cross them, and a new and legant set of Carriages may be had at the Stables, Prune Street, above and below Fifth. june 22

OLDRIDGE'S
BALM OF COLUMBIA.

J. OLDRIDGE begs leave to inform the inhabitants of the United States and elsewhere, that he has discovered, by the power of chemistry, the grand desideratum of preventing the hair from falling off, in the short space of FORTY-EIGHT HOURS after the first application.

This Balm will also restore hair on bald places, and speedily cure the dandruff. He now considers it altogether useless to continue to give signatures, its utility being universally known in Philadelphia, and hundreds are at this time receiving their hair again. J. O. begs leave to return thanks to the generous Americans, for the liberal encouragement bestowed upon his capilary restoratice since its first discovery, and hopes to merit a continuation of their favours. Prepared and sold at No. 55½ South Front street, and at No. 11 North Fourth street, Philadelphia, by

Between Ann Wilson & Thomas Wilson, Complainants, And William M. Eldridge and Sarah, his wife, Jacob Pricket, John Paul and Joseph M. Paul, Defendants. } On Bill to foreclose, &c. July 19, 1822.

IT appearing to the Court, that process of subpœna to appear, &c. hath issued against the above named defendants, and that William M. Eldridge and Sarah, his wife, John Paul and Joseph M. Paul, have not, nor hath either of them, entered their appearance to be entered, as according to the rules of this Court the same ought to have been entered, in case such process had been duly served; and it also appearing, by affidavit, to the satisfaction of the Chancellor, that the said William M. Eldridge and Sarah, his wife, John Paul, and Joseph M. Paul, reside out of this state, and in the state of Pennsylvania—upon opening the matter, this day, to the Court, on behalf of Samuel J. Read, Solicitor of the complainants, the Chancellor doth order and direct the said William M. Eldridge and Sarah, his wife, John Paul and Joseph M. Paul, to appear, plead, answer, or demur to the complainant's bill of complaint in this cause, on or before the second Tuesday of October next, and in case they or either of them shall fail so to do, the complainant's bill shall be taken as confessed against them or either of them so failing to appear, plead answer, or demur, and thereupon such decree shall be made as the Chancellor shall think equitable and just. And it is further ordered, that a copy of this order be published within twenty days after the date hereof, in the "New-Jersey Mirror," a newspaper printed and published at Mount-Holly, in this state, and be continued therein for the space of six weeks successively, once at least in each week, and also in one of the public newspapers printed and published in the city of Philadelphia, for the space of four weeks successively, once at least in each week.
